*Will there really be a "Morning"?
Is there such a thing as "Day"?
Could I see it from the mountains
If I were as tall as they?*

*Has it feet like Water lilies?
Has it feathers like a Bird?
Is it brought from famous countries
Of which I have never heard?*

*Oh some Scholar! Oh some Sailor!
Oh some Wise Man from the skies!
Please to tell a little Pilgrim
Where the place called "Morning" lies!*

LETTER TO A LITTLE GIRL

Dear Pie:

Things to worry about:*

*Worry about courage
Worry about cleanliness
Worry about efficiency
Worry about horsemanship . . .*

Things not to worry about:*

*Don't worry about popular opinion
Don't worry about dolls
Don't worry about the past
Don't worry about the future
Don't worry about growing up
Don't worry about anybody getting ahead of you Don't worry about triumph
Don't worry about failure unless it comes through your own fault
Don't worry about mosquitoes
Don't worry about flies
Don't worry about insects in general
Don't worry about parents
Don't worry about boys
Don't worry about disappointments
Don't worry about pleasures
Don't worry about satisfactions*

Things to think about:*

What am I really aiming at?

At summer camp, in 1933
When she was 11 years old.

*What a woman needs is not as a
woman to act or rule,
but as a nature to grow,
as an intellect to discern,
as a soul to live freely and
unimpeded,
to unfold such powers as were given her
when we left our common home.*

I grew up pretty much as everybody else grows up, and one day . . . found myself saying to myself — I can't live where I want to — I can't go where I want to — I can't do what I want to — I can't even say what I want to — School and things that painters have taught me even keep me from painting as I want to. I decided I was a very stupid fool not to at least paint as I wanted to and say what I wanted to when I painted, as that seemed to be the only thing I could do that didn't concern anybody but myself — that was nobody's business but my own . . .

The Library — is not a shrine for the worship of books. It is not a temple where literary incense must be burned or where one's devotion to the bound book is expressed in ritual. A library, to modify the famous metaphor of Socrates, should be the delivery room for the birth of ideas — a place where history comes to live.

I was excited. I was confident, too. I don't mean that I wasn't nervous, because I was. But I was nervous and confident at the same time, nervous about going out there in front of all those people, with so much at stake, and confident that I was going to go out there and win.

Right now, as you sit here in your caps and gowns, celebrating your graduation, a child is starving to death in Somalia. Right now, as you sit here, a woman is being tortured in El Salvador . . . We cannot possibly know what that is like — understand it . . . But if you saw it, I swear, you wouldn't — you couldn't ever forget . . . The question is, do we care for our brothers and sisters — our fellow human beings all over the world? . . . Will we make this a better life for our younger generation — for my children — and for the next generation — for your children?

TO GIVE A CHILD A DREAM

You cannot practice for her every day;
The knowledge that you give her will not stream
On her young mind in one bright, blinding ray, —
But you can plant a dream.

Ah, you can plant a dream in her young heart,
A dream of excellence whose light will gleam
Upon her pathway as the years depart, —
Your words can plant a dream.

To sow a dream and see it spread and grow,
To light a lamp and watch its brightness gleam,
Here is a gift that is divine I know —
To give a child a dream.

"Women's liberation" is neither a new nor a threatening idea. It is merely a contemporary name for the pursuit of equal rights. Equality does not demand the abandonment of domestic responsibilities for intellectual achievement. Equality merely acknowledges a woman's right to define herself and to set her own priorities . . .

Women are not homogeneous. There is no purpose served by replacing the stereotype of the mother in her apron with a cookie in hand with the stereotype of the woman executive with her briefcase.

Imagine there's no countries
it isn't hard to do
all that's below us
above us only sky.

Imagine all the people
living for today, ah.

Imagine there's no countries
it isn't hard to do nothing to kill or die for
and no religion too.

Imagine all the people
living life in peace.

You, you may say I'm a dreamer
but I'm not the only one
I hope some day you'll join us
and the world will be as one.

Imagine no possessions
I wonder if you can
no need for greed or hunger
a brotherhood of man.

Imagine all the people

I hope some day you'll join us
and the world will live as one.

John Lennon
1940-1980

Photographs show people being so irrefutably there and at a specific age in their lives; group together people and things which a moment later have already disbanded, changed, continued along the course of their independent destinies.

Susan Sontag

Linda Ketchum and Fred Dobro, our tireless photographers, brought Ms. Sontag's essay to our attention. Nothing, we decided, could be more appropriate to the Lamp '81. Five, 10, even 20 years from now, we hope you can still remember Lasell through this collection of photographs.

That's Linda and Fred in the photos, and without their efforts, the events of 1980-1981 would have been vague memories.

Many thanks also to:

Dick Sweich, Hunter Publishing representative, who gave us every conceivable break so that we could miss deadlines, exceed our budget, and generally wreck havoc with yearbook publishing guidelines. We understand Dick took his last Valium the day this Lamp '81 went to press.

Helen Wallstrom, Dean of Students, for her budget wizardry. Wow! We made it with a whole 99¢ to spare!

Annette Kania, Lamp '80 Editor, for her calm and correct advice during desperate midnight phone calls to Briggs house.

Tracie Lyons and her grandfather who arranged for our use of the colorful sunrise and sunset.

Lasell students Susan Murray, Carla Haven, Debbie Monaghan and many others, for their numerous candid photos.
